HOWE'S PRIZE MEDAL Sewing Machines!!

ELIAS HOWE, JR., THE ORIGINAL INVENTOR of the Sewing Machine was awarded the

First Prize Medal

AT THE

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION,

Recently held at London, over 20 kinds of Sewing Machines entered for competition from all parts of the world. This is the greatest triumph of the age, and all who have an opportunity to examine their merits are satisfied that they are the most perfect in Mechanism and simplest in construction of any Machine yet produced, being easily understood, not at all liable to get out of repair, and are very durable. They are adapted to all grades of work, and make a perfect

Lock Stitch,

Alike on both sides of the fabric. Every one should see the Opinion of R. E. Stratton on the Tax Question.

STATE OF OREGON VS. LANE COUNTY.

The complainant alleges that the defendant Lane county is indebted to the State Treasurer for the [illegible] for the year 1863 in the sum of [illegible] hundred and sixty and ninety six hundredths dollars in gold coin and silver coin.

To these allegations the defendant answers and pleads a tender of United States Treasury notes, in [illegible] on the 23d day of January, 1864. The plaintiff demurred.

Sec. 121 of an Act passed January 20th, 1858, and the one on which this action is predicated, among other things provides: "And the sheriff shall, in all cases, pay over to the county Treasurer the full amount of [illegible] and such of taxes in gold and silver coin." It is not questioned that the taxes for the year 1863 were levied and collected in virtue of this "Act," as there was no other. The Act of Congress, of February 25th, 1862, providing for the issue of Treasury notes, and making them a legal tender for certain purposes, after a lean argument was declared constitutional by the Supreme Court of this State at its last term. These notes for the purposes enumerated in the Act must therefore be taken to be money, and the legal equivalent of gold and silver coin. The facts as thus stated present two questions for decision:

1. Are taxes levied by a State for its own municipal purposes [illegible] of the Act of Congress, or in other words, is a tax a debt within the meaning of that Act?

2. Admitting that a tax is a debt, has not the State the legal right to discriminate and collect its revenue in any lawful currency of the United States?

I have thus briefly as possible stated the only material points in the case, and I shall just as briefly undertake to indicate the conclusion to which I have come upon the two points suggested.

As to the first question, I may remark at the outset that there are necessarily few authorities bearing upon the point, owing, as a matter of course, in part to the recent passage of the Treasury note act by Congress, but more owing to the fact that in nearly every State except the Pacific States and Territories, legal tender notes became the currency of the country, the standard of all values, and no such question as the one under consideration would be likely to arise. Such an one did arise, however, in the State of California, in 1863, upon a similar law to our own, and was very elaborately argued before the Supreme Court of that State. The opinion of the court, all the Justices concurring, was drawn up by the then Chief Justice Field, since appointed to the Supreme Bench of the United States. This authority is directly in point, and is certainly a very respectable one. Chief Justice Field states so concisely and clearly the whole question, with the views of the Court, that I cannot do better than quote his language:

"The Act of Congress does not, in our judgment, have any reference to taxes levied under the laws of the State. It only speaks of taxes due to the United States, and distinguishes between them and debts. Its language is, for all taxes, internal duties, excises, debts and demands of every kind due to the United States. It only uses the term 'debts' the notes, it declares, shall be 'a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private.' Taxes are not debts within the meaning of this provision. A debt is a sum of money due by contract, express or implied; a tax is a charge upon persons or property to raise money for public purposes. It is not founded upon contract; it does not establish the relation of debtor and creditor between the tax payer and State. It does not draw interest, it is not the subject of attachment, and it is not liable to set-off. It owes its existence to the action of the legislative power, and does not depend for its validity or enforcement upon the individual assent of the tax payer. It operates in invitum."

In support of this view the Court referred to the City of Camden vs. Allen, (2 Dutcher's New Jersey Reports, 397;) Pierce vs. the City of Boston, (3 Met., 520,) and Shaw vs. Pickett, (26 Vt., 482.)

It may not be improper for me to state that when this question was first presented to the Courts of this State, I entertained a different view from the one above expressed, but a careful consideration of the subject leads me to a similar conclusion.

It is undeniably true that there are many terms used in ordinary phraseology with a much wider, and sometimes a quite different signification to that which belongs to the word in its technical sense. Thus, the term debt, is properly used to express any kind of obligation between persons, whether existing by contract or by operation of law. Legally, it is an obligation arising upon a contract only. (see Bour. L. D.) Some stress has sometimes been laid upon the language of the opinion in the case of the State vs. Multnomah county. Having drawn up the opinion of the Supreme Court in that case, however its language may have been construed, it is proper for me to say that no such question as the one now before me was presented in that case, and, consequently, no point could have been then decided which could be authority here.

As to the second point. Has a State the legal right to collect its revenue in any lawful currency of the United States, whether paper or gold and silver, or in one to the exclusion of the other? I think a State has that power. Not only may a State support its organization, by levying taxes in any kind of currency, but it may equally impose a tax payable in kind, or in personal services, and the law making, sovereign power of the State, has the same authority to command me to serve the State two days in a year, as Judge of the 2d Judicial District, as it has to compel me to work the same number of days upon the highway without compensation, and it is entirely optional with this legislative power, whether I shall have the privilege of commuting that service by a payment of money. My obedience may be enforced by fine or imprisonment. To say that Congress may declare in what manner a State may raise its revenue, is to say that a State has no independent existence, that every function may be subordinated to Congress. The power to raise a revenue is the very life of the State, and if Congress may lawfully dictate the means, it may destroy the State—a power which the National Legislature may no more claim, than a State the right to destroy the General Government. One authority alone, to which I shall refer, ought, it seems to me, to settle the question upon this point.

Alexander Hamilton, in number 33 and 34 of the Federalist, has very clearly defined the extent of the powers of the General Government and that of the individual States, in the matter of raising revenue by taxation. One or two extracts will sufficiently show the light in which he viewed this subject. He says:

"Though a law, therefore, levying a tax for the use of the United States, would be supreme in its nature, and could not legally be opposed or controlled, yet a law abrogating or preventing the collection of a tax laid by the authority of a State, (unless upon imports and exports), would not be the supreme law of the land, but an usurpation of a power not granted by the Constitution. * * *

The inference from the whole is, that the individual States would, under the proposed Constitution, retain an independent and uncontrollable authority to raise revenue to any extent of which they may stand in need, by every kind of taxation except duties on imports and exports.

It will be shown in the next paper, that this concurrent jurisdiction in the article of taxation, was the only admissible substitute for an entire subordination, in respect to this branch of power, of State authority to that of the Union."

The whole of the "next paper" to which Mr. Hamilton refers in the above extract, is devoted to a vindication of this "concurrent jurisdiction" system between the United States and the several States, in the matter of taxation. The argument is far too lengthy to find a place here. I can only give the closing paragraph:

"The preceding train of observations will justify the position which has been elsewhere laid down, that a concurrent jurisdiction in the article of taxation, was the only admissible substitute for an entire subordination, in respect to this branch of power, of State authority to that of the Union. * * * * The Convention thought the concurrent jurisdiction preferable to that of subordination; and it is evident that it has at least the merit of reconciling an indefinite constitutional power of taxation in the Federal Government, with an adequate and independent power in the States to provide for their own necessities."

Could language be more plain as to the independent power of the States over the subject of taxation for their own purposes, and this too, by a member of the Convention which framed the Constitution, and (Madison alone excepted), had more to do with shaping its character than any other member. From the joint position of the names to the Federalist, it is fair to infer that this view of the subject met the approval of Madison and John Jay. It will not be forgotten either, that, afterwards, Mr. Hamilton became the representative man of that class who were disposed to carry the authority of the Federal Government to its utmost limit, and were bitterly attacked as trenching upon the rights of the States.

I understand that the answer to all this will be, that Congress has the power to declare what shall be money, that the revenue of the State is raised in money, and that a State has no authority to reject money in payment of its dues. Let me repeat, that if the power of taxation is a concurrent, independent one in the State, it follows of necessity, that the State must possess means through which the end be reached. If Congress may rightfully inject a single element into this process, taxation ceases to be an independent State right, and remains a simple custom by sufferance.

If I entertained any doubts in regard to the correctness of these views still I think those doubts ought to weigh in favor of the State in this case. There is no equity in the defence of the county. The great mass of the citizens of the State have paid their taxes in gold and silver according to the form of the law. Taxation should be uniform in its burden, but Lane county proposes to discharge her obligation by a payment of about $60 [illegible] on the dollar of her just indebtedness.

Let the demurrer be sustained and judgment upon demurrer.

THE OVERLAND IMMIGRATION.—Emigrant wagons were numerously arriving at Salt Lake on the 20th instant and stopping there for rest and supplies. The Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise of July 26th, thus notices the first arrivals in that place:

A couple of emigrant wagons from St. Joseph, Missouri, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, the end of their journey. From the driver of one of the teams we learned that there are no very large trains now on the road for this State or California. Most of those who came across the Plains this season were bound for Oregon. Feed has been abundant this season along the whole route. The party were not much disturbed by Indians, though they heard many stories of Indian depredations. The two wagons mentioned are the first we have seen that have crossed the Plains this year. More will doubtless soon be coming in.

To illustrate the Yankee style of improving opportunities it is related of a Northern merchant who was eating his dinner at the Battle House, at the time of the recent explosion at Mobile, that although badly cut by the flying fragments of the window, he managed to rush to the telegraph office, and send a dispatch to his partner to "ship nothing but putty and glass." This duty done he fainted, and has been in a brain fever ever since.

[illegible] THE STATE

TUESDAY MORNING, AUGUST [illegible] 1865

A Compromise on the Suffrage Question

In the [illegible] of the ex[illegible] who [illegible] once every plan of [illegible] universal suffrage in the lately rebellious States. The President [illegible] was to interfere in the [illegible] each State has the unquestioned right to prescribe what qualifications [illegible] shall possess. This is certainly [illegible] view of the question. The President has no right to proceed in any other manner. Whatever his private views in regard to the [illegible] of universal suffrage may be, he is compelled by the oath he has taken to adhere to his present course. As our Constitution now stands nothing is clearer than that the States have exclusive control of the suffrage question. It can therefore serve no good purpose for those [illegible] to persist in their demand that the General Government shall undertake to do a thing, which, obviously, it has no right to do. The country sustains the President in the course he is pursuing, thus utterly confuting the ridiculous assertions of the Copperhead factionists who are perpetually declaring that all Constitutional barriers are going down before those who as they allege are bent on subverting our political system, and erecting a central and despotic government in its stead.

In the East a proposition has been started to amend the Constitution in the usual way, so that the States may still hold the right to prescribe what persons shall be allowed to vote for members of their Legislatures and for all State and local officers, while the proposed Amendment shall provide that all persons who are able to read and write the English language, and no others, may vote for Presidential electors and members of Congress. This plan is unfolded and advocated by many of the Eastern papers and it is said that the President is understood to be in favor of it. This last assertion, however, is probably founded on nothing better than mere conjecture. The President, it is claimed, favors the measure as the easiest method of surmounting the great difficulties which surround the whole question and as a compromise between the extremists of all parties.

In a country where suffrage is general, ignorance among the masses is felt to be a greater political evil than in other places where the right to vote is withheld from such as are not qualified to exercise it intelligently. It is certainly greatly to be desired that the standard of intelligence should be brought up as high as possible among those who are to govern themselves. Whether it can or will be accomplished in the manner indicated is yet to be seen.

General Wright.—From the time when the announcement was first made of the terrible disaster that befel the steamer Brother Jonathan, we have been waiting with eager anxiety in the hope that we might learn of others having been rescued in addition to the very few of whose safety we were then assured. We had hoped that others might escape, and that the tidings might reach us that General Wright was numbered among them. A dispatch that we publish this morning renders it almost absolutely certain that General Wright is among the lost. The last door of hope is closed, the last possibility on which his friends rested his chances for safety, is gone, and we are confronted with the painful truth that he, in company with scores of others, are gone to be seen no more.

Almost the whole of General Wright's life was passed in the military service of his country. Of his age, we have no precise information, but it must have exceeded sixty years. He was born in Vermont, and appointed to a place in West Point from that State. On the first of July 1822, he was commissioned a second Lieutenant in the Third Infantry. We have not now the means of information at hand so as to be able to give the dates and degrees of his several promotions in the army. He was brevetted Colonel on the 8th of September 1847, and made full Colonel on the 1st of March 1855. Shortly after this, he came to Oregon, bringing his regiment, the Ninth Infantry, with him. He remained here as commander of this Military District until the summer of 1861. He then went to California. In September of the same year, he was commissioned Brigadier-General of Volunteers. From that time until the arrival of General McDowell, he commanded the military forces of the Pacific coast. Since the time McDowell assumed the command of the Department of the Pacific, General Wright commanded the District of California until his departure a few days since for Vancouver to take charge of the new Department of Columbia.

During the five years of his stay in Oregon, General Wright became well known to our people, and was held by them in the highest estimation. The reputation he bore here, was that of an upright gentleman, and an able and efficient officer. He came among us at a time when our frontiers were distracted by the horrors of a savage warfare which compelled the people to arm in defence of their own lives. It was universally acknowledged by our people that the efforts of General, then Colonel Wright, did much to re-establish peace and to provide for the protection and safety of the outlying settlements. When he went to California in 1861, his departure was deeply regretted. A short time ago, when it was decided that he should return, the people and the military forces here received the announcement with the greatest satisfaction. From a knowledge of his past services here, it was felt that his presence at this juncture would be of great advantage. Much was expected of his military administration by those who are exposed to the annoyances incident to living in a country filled by predatory Indians, as Eastern Oregon is now.

But we are doomed to disappointment. In this community sorrow for his loss is universal and profound. Upon his family, some of whom were here waiting for him, this great grief falls with a crushing weight. But though he may be seen no more, General George Wright will long be remembered by those here and elsewhere, whose fortune it has been to know him well.

A Forewarning.—What is to be our future is a question often asked but never answered. The boldest statesmen speak not, the voice of the patriot is silent, rulers are dumb and the people amazed. It is the deep horrible calm that fills with fear the stoutest heart before the bursting storm descends upon the quaking earth. The shock will come; fortunes, homes and lives will perish in an awful convulsion, that soon must whelm the land.

The last Eugene Rev[illegible] contains the above paragraph. This mysterious language reminds us of the dark hints which were sneeringly uttered by its party members and party press prior to the assassination of President Lincoln, and which were either wholly unintelligible or could only be vaguely guessed at until after the murderous blow had fallen. Can it be possible that the "Democracy" are contemplating more assassinations? If not

What mean these words of import so obscure.

The State vs. Lane County.—Judge Stratton has decided the case adversely to Lane county. He decides that a tender of U. S. Currency notes in payment of State Taxes is insufficient, and that they are due in gold and silver coin. We publish his decision to-day. It is probable that the case will be carried up to the Supreme Court.

Hanged.—The Umatilla Advertiser of the 5th inst. says:

> A report circulates in the streets that a Mexican arrested here a few days since for stealing horses near La Grande and taken to that place for trial, has been hanged by the sufferers from his depredations.

[illegible] Fire at Walla Walla.—Letters received to-night [illegible] that a very destructive fire [illegible] Walla Walla last Tuesday morning. It is thought that the fire [illegible]. After the flames got under way they were [illegible] the City Hotel and across the street destroying forty or fifty buildings. The burnt district extends from the Oriental Hotel to Kraft's table. The loss is estimated at [illegible] $80,000. The people of Walla Walla are going to work energetically [illegible] Saturday [illegible] had already been placed on the ground and Mr. Kraft [illegible] would have a new stable ready [illegible]. Many of the merchants saved a large portion of their goods.

The following is a list of a part of the losses by the fire:

[illegible]	$1,[illegible]
[illegible]	600
[illegible]	4,000
[illegible]	4,000
[illegible]	1,[illegible]

[illegible]	20,000
[illegible]	1,000
City Hotel	15,000
Bank Exchange	1,000
Court House	8,000

Other losses not here mentioned will probably swell the total amount to over $200,000.

Kentucky.—A late number of the Louisville Journal has the following on the issue now before the people of that State:

The people of Kentucky freely and universally admit that the rebellion has given a fatal blow to slavery, and that its restoration hereafter will be utterly impossible. But they are daily urged by a certain class of politicians to remain wholly inactive on the subject, taking no step to adapt our laws to the existing condition of affairs with a view to relieving as far as possible, the evils growing out of that condition. The argument is that Kentucky is not to blame for the overthrow of slavery, and therefore she should now do nothing to remove its broken remains lest she be made thereby a participant in its destruction. No argument more inconsistent with the demands of true statesmanship was ever addressed to a people who were involved in a perilous issue. Slavery has been broken down; it cannot be reinstated, and something must be done, and that quickly, to alleviate the evils now felt by the State in consequence of the sudden and thorough revolution now occurring in our system of labor. Can we apply the remedy by standing idly by and permitting ourselves to be controlled by the inevitable events of the hour? Were it not better and wiser that we not only recognize the existing facts, but make them the basis of action in shaping our State policy? If we act we can exert a controlling influence for our future good; if we remain inactive we will be directed and that helplessly, by an ulterior influence affecting our present and future peace and prosperity. We say, therefore, that those men who through the press and on the stump, are urging the people of Kentucky to vote against the amendment, are but urging the people to submit to be overridden by inevitable events which might in a great degree, be controlled by themselves.

The Trial of Paroled Prisoners of War.—It is noticeable that no steps have yet been taken to bring to trial for treason either Robert E. Lee or any other of the paroled prisoners of war who surrendered to Grant and Sherman. There seems to be little occasion for doubt, as a question of law, that a military parole only binds a prisoner and his captors, just so long as he would have been held in confinement had not the parole been given. Parole is not, of itself, "amnesty," but a pledge, in consideration of which the captive is released from actual custody for the time being. The parole and its obligations end when the war ends, and the prisoner, if he had been retained in military durese, would have been freed from it. The war over, the prisoner loses both the responsibilities and the privileges of a belligerent, and in the present case peace reduces the rebel to his original legal status as a citizen, subject to all the penalties of violated civil law against treason as well as against any other civil crime. Thus Lee's parole, therefore, in no sense constitutes a legal protection for his treason. But it is said that the Executive is doubtful of the policy of subjecting those paroled prisoners to civil trial because of the consideration that the Government has its own reputation to maintain as well as to see that traitors are punished. Whatever Lee and his comrades may deserve the Government must deal with him as befits the National honor and dignity. If Grant offered and Lee accepted the parole with the understanding that it had the force of an amnesty, and that it was to protect the surrendering rebels from civil molestation as well as military, the Executive doubtless will execute the contract in that spirit. In every event, the Government will be placed beyond reasonable suspicion of breaking faith no matter how guilty the party with whom it undertook to treat.—Bulletin.

Ford's Theater and Booth's Brandy.—Ford's Theater inside presents a scene of the greatest confusion. All the properties, wardrobes, furniture, etc., of the establishment are piled upon the stage preparatory to packing and removing. The purchasers propose to pay $10,000 to Mr. Ford, when the property will be conveyed to them. Strangers in the city are continually calling and asking admission to the building, but thus far none have been admitted, save a few members of the Press. Notwithstanding the close surveillance of the guards who have had the theater in charge, the building has been roughly used. Curiosity seekers have completely whittled away the bench upon which "Peanut John" sat whilst holding Booth's horse, and about a yard square has been cut away from the green baize carpet, surrounding the spot where Booth's foot struck when he jumped upon the stage, after shooting the President. One of these curious visitors entered the saloon adjoining the theater, where Booth took his last drink of brandy just before he murdered Mr. Lincoln. The visitor inquired of the barkeeper: "Have you the same bottle on hand out of which Booth drank on the night of the assassination?" "Yes, sir." "Let's have it." The visitor tasted the brandy, made a wry face, and continued: "And that's the same brandy that Booth drank?" "Yes, sir." "Well, I don't wonder that he killed the President. A drink of that brandy would make a man kill his grandmother."

Opinions of the President.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Independent warns impulsive Republicans against a hasty judgment of the President. "It is wise," he says, "to create a strong public sentiment that will support the President in taking bold ground hereafter in support of universal suffrage at the South. But attacks upon him before he has had time to decide definitely upon his policy are not justifiable. Personally he favors negro suffrage. He has said so repeatedly of late. He is in doubt as to the means to be used. Probably he has a little of the old prejudice against the negro. But if he has it a[illegible] of the free States [illegible] at him? Republican Philadelphia is in a tempest because a black man attempts to ride in the [illegible] cars. The black man is still disliked at the North. Give Johnson a little time to watch events. The Virginia election was worth more to us than a hundred severe criticisms, for the President is determined that slavery and disunion shall die. He begins to see that he cannot destroy them without the aid of the negro at the ballot box, as we did not and could not conquer the armies of the rebellion."

General Ewell.—This rebel officer is among the latest applicants for Presidential pardon. He states as an excuse for his rebellious conduct that Northern Copperhead newspapers and public men [illegible] and said so much to encourage the Southern [illegible] of the Union, that he thought secession could be easily accomplished. There is no doubt but that those Copperheads of traitorous instincts are about as guilty as the Southern rebels whom they promised to support. If General Ewell should be hanged it would be a proper act to stretch Vallandigham, Powell and Horatio Seymour from the same gallows with him.

At a social party in Mobile recently there was some [illegible] between the Federal and rebel [illegible] present, till one of the latter, a fine singer, was called on for a song when he sung "The Star Spangled Banner" with much spirit. The whole party [illegible], and after that [illegible] and good feeling reigned.

California News.

San Francisco, August [illegible].—Chung Wong, the Chinaman who was recently convicted of murdering his mistress, was to-day sentenced to be hung on the 2[illegible] of September. Chung Wong looked very indifferent when his sentence was interpreted to him, as he also did throughout the trial. His counsel proposed to carry the case before the Supreme Court.

There is a proposition on foot to lay the Nicolson pavement on Montgomery street from Jackson to [illegible] Market. A railroad locomotive placed on a truck weighing in all about forty tons was hauled over the Nicolson pavement on Howard [illegible] last week. The pavement stood the strain without any apparent injury. The old pavements were ploughed up badly in several places.

The Regulars carried the primary in all the districts except the first where the Independents obtained seventy two majority.

The Markets.

Hawaiian are reported sold at 2½ cents. Oil—further sales of 1,200 cases of ex [illegible] at $1 10. The market now is decidedly firmer, quotable at $1 10@$1 25 for round lots, also 100 cases of lard oil also ex [illegible], at $2 30. Provisions—there is more doing in the Eastern meats. The late arrivals have increased the supply somewhat.

There has been a movement in smoked bacon, the particulars of which have not transpired. Spirits of Turpentine—a round lot of 1[illegible] bbls California, brought $1 20 ⅌ gallon. Sugar—100 bbls New York crushed, from store, brought 1[illegible]c ⅌ lb.

Produce Market.—Flour droops under accumulating supplies and a moderate demand. Sales of round lots extras at $5 25@$5 50 ⅌ bbl in half and quarter sacks, and jobbing transactions at proportionate figures. We quote superfine at $5 2[illegible]@$5 50 ⅌ bbl. Wheat—The receipts are large and the market is heavy and drooping. Sales since our last report aggregate 4,440 sks at $1 7[illegible]@$1 80 as extremes, one lot of choice San Jose is reported at $1 85 which however is an extreme figure at the close. The market would scarcely bear anything over $1 80@$1 75 for good average lots. Barley is without decided change as regards price. The demand is fair. Sales of 2,800 sks in lots at $1 [illegible]@$1 02½, chiefly at $1 ⅌ 100 lbs. The receipts in [illegible]. Oats are dull, and the market wavers. Sales of [illegible] sks at $1 60@$1 62½ ⅌ 100 lbs. Hay—cargo sales at $9@$12 ⅌ ton. Wool dull; 16 bales Oregon sold at 22½c. Good grades of California are quotable at 17@19c ⅌ lb, and burry and inferior at proportionate prices.

Legal Tenders 7[illegible]@71½.

Arrived—Ship [illegible], sixty days from Hong Kong; steamer Pacific, San Pedro.

Sailed—Ship [illegible], Nanaimo.

THE NICOLSON PAVEMENT.—Mr. Jonathan Taylor, the assignee of the patentee of the Nicolson Pavement for San Francisco, California and Oregon, yesterday exhibited the method of the construction [illegible] at the [illegible] of Front street [illegible] It has been in use since the year 1850.

OREGON SHIPMENTS.—The semi-annual statement of the San Francisco lumber dealers association of lumber received at that port from January 1st to July 1st, 1865, inclusive, shows the following receipts from Humboldt and Oregon:

Months	Feet
January	[illegible]
February	[illegible]
March	[illegible]
April	[illegible]
May	[illegible]
June	[illegible]
Total feet	[illegible]

Shingles, lath and piles are not taken into the above account. It will be seen that for the first quarter but 1,431,000 feet was received. At that time the pockets of the Oregon line were employed solely in the carrying trade and other agricultural products. The first lumber cargo leaving the Columbia river in 1865 was by the bark Scotland Merrill on the 11th of April, since which time every sailing vessel leaving for San Francisco has taken lumber and the average amount has been 800,000 feet per month, which added to that received from Humboldt gives this portion of the country a large trade. We believe that wherever the commerce of the Pacific coast is to be considered, the policy of maintaining a superiority for California is always carried out. We hear and read but little from Oregon. The report on the foreign commerce, published by the departments at Washington, scarcely refer to Oregon and we claim to hold too prominent a position to be thus continually overlooked. For the past year and a half Oregon vessels to California have taken cargoes of a valuation in [illegible] lumber etc. of not less than [illegible],000,000 and we [illegible] those from whom the statistics emanate [illegible] the important interests of the region that they make distinct calculations upon the traffic we enjoy as a State.

FROM THE UPPER COLUMBIA.—From Mr. H. Nevlin of this city, who returned from Colville on Friday last, we learn that the new mines on the upper Columbia are being worked. He was informed by Mr. Winans, of the firm of Abrams & Co., Colville, that Mr. Abrams was then at the mines, some three hundred miles above Colville. The prospectors have found gold there and some claims were paying well. Others of the companies at work had accomplished nothing of consequence. The high water has prevented the opening of claims to good advantage. In some cases claims were opened by sinking shafts, and the depth of twenty-five or thirty feet had been attained, from which we are lead to the inference that the diggings are not unlike Caraboo in one respect—that they are very deep. Generally deep diggings are the best. The gold obtained is very fine, assaying $12—but 8s less than the standard for pure quality. The first camp is about 300 miles above Colville, and 75 miles farther there is a second camp. People there appear to be very sanguine in their expectations of rich mines, but he should not advise a rush to the new fields until more is heard from them. Mr. Abrams will very likely write in reference to the same soon, and we are assured that his statements may be relied upon. Some of those holding claims in that country have refused fabulous prices for their possessions, but prefer not to sell, which is the best indication of confidence that can be referred to at this time. Capt. White's new steamer is being built at Little Dalles, thirty miles above Colville, and may possibly be finished in time to make trips this season. The route is very bad to travel but when this steamer is equipped for the trade will navigate the Columbia river, making the mines quite accessible. A trail from Colville to Little Dalles can be made without great expense. The country is very wild at present, but in case the mines discovered prove remunerative the wilderness will quickly be transformed into a productive and populous region.

LETTER POSTAGE.—Mr. Prindle, clerk at the Postoffice, yesterday called our attention to an error quite prevalent among letter writers of the present day, which, at the same time, appears singular as it is generally supposed that the laws of Congress relative to stamping letters, pre-paying postage on them, and that with postage stamps, had been in force long enough, and was sufficiently understood, to prevent mistakes. Letters are often deposited in the Postoffice box with stamps upon them which were called in by the Department four years ago. These never reach their destination, but are forwarded in accordance with law to the dead letter office. It is more frequently the case that revenue stamps are affixed to letters. Yesterday four or five letters were held to be sent to the dead-letter office, because they were covered by revenue, not postage stamps. These are not taken in payment of postage. Last month twenty-five letters with such stamps upon them were forwarded to the dead letter office from Portland, on that account. A little precaution exercised by persons in such matters would save a vast amount of trouble sometimes. There is a great increase in the amount of letters forward to the dead letter office, and to guard against it somewhat, we see that the Department is giving notice to the leading Post offices in the country, that hereafter all stamped envelopes sold by the Department, will have a blank form printed across the left end, as follows: "If not called for within —— days, please return to ——" having the number of days and the writer's address to be filled in before mailing. Postmaster Davis has not yet received the new order, at the office in this city, but it should be borne in mind by all that revenue stamps do not answer for postage.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In Recorder's Court yesterday, John O[illegible], a somewhat noted individual in Portland, was fined $5 and costs, for fighting on Sunday evening on Alder street. He paid his fine. The cause of the row still remains hidden in mystery. The singular habits of the Chinese are somewhat enigmatical, but the sense of Melican man are not shut to the reality of the fact that the Mongolians are a nuisance, unfit for the habitations of civilized man. So far as their connections in this matter is concerned, there is no necessity for explanation. Jas. Anderson, and a man called Ned, were arrested for fighting on Front street. Ned escaped, and Anderson's case was continued.

AN EXTENSIVE ENTERPRISE.—The People's Transportation Company yesterday began a most important enterprise at Canemah. They propose constructing a basin from the upper landing to connect the lower landing at the falls, by which boats can receive and discharge freight in such close connection as to have it all under one roof, and cause but a short distance of trucking. This will avoid the necessity of transportation by railroad, as at present. The company last week purchased the millsite property at the falls, of Mr. Amos Harvey, paying $49,000 for it.

VIGILANCE HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY'S TRUCK.—Lawson & Elliot are making a handsome truck, at their shop on Second street, for Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company. The work being done at it is a great credit to our mechanics. The city appropriated $800 for the construction of the truck, but individual members are expending as much more, and there will be no better nor finer work in any department than they will secure on this.

CIRCUIT COURT.—The special term of the Circuit Court of Multnomah county continues in [illegible], Judge Shattuck pr[illegible]ing, and will probably not adjourn sine die until Saturday evening. There has been nothing of public interest transpiring for some days past, except in the case of Gilliban vs. Corbett, Arrigoni, and others, the final decree in which case the Court has reserved until the closing of the term.

TWO NEW CISTERNS.—The contract for building two new fire-cisterns, in accordance with plans and specifications adopted by the City Council, was let yesterday to Mr. Cahe[illegible]. The [illegible] will be made at the crossing of Jefferson and Third streets, and [illegible] Clark and [illegible] streets, and are to be built when there shall be funds in the city treasury sufficient to pay for the same.

A CROWDED STEAMER.—The steamer from the Cascades last evening brought [illegible] passengers, and a heavy freight, having on board the wagons [illegible] of Lee & Ryland's circus. The band of the company were playing when the boat landed, and the crowd at the wharf was legion.

ANOTHER ROW.—A white man, who was [illegible] one of the boys from New York, and a Chinaman on Washington street, indulged in a spat [illegible] last evening. They were taken to jail by the police, and will appear before Recorder H[illegible] this morning.

QUARTZ FOR NEW YORK.—A consignment of quartz rock amounting to five large packages, from Dayhew, was received by Ladd & Tilton last evening. It will be forwarded to New York by the first steamer.

RIDING ON THE SIDE WALK.—Capt. D. Watt was fined $5 and costs before Recorder Hoffman yesterday, for riding his horse on the side walk around the McAdam [illegible] of Front street.

THE SAW MILLS AT NIGHT.—The saw mills of this city are now kept busy by night and day in order to supply the demands on them for lumber.

TO SAIL.—The bark Almatia, Capt. Stannard, will leave this port to-morrow for Oak Point, sailing for San Francisco on Friday. She will carry a light cargo.

GENERAL [illegible].—A Murfreesboro correspondent thus speaks of a [illegible]:

[illegible] The place is an elegant one, like some English country seat. After leaving the pike to enter the grounds, we [illegible] considerable distance through [illegible] to catch a glimpse of the residence. General [illegible] greeted us affably and [illegible] exceedingly talkative. He is about fifty years of age [illegible] would pass for a gentleman [illegible] He talks in substance [illegible]. We are conquered [illegible] We give it up; we are [illegible] we only ask a chance now to get a living for our families and we ask it [illegible] we have got through with the fight, and though the South tried to make as good a fight as she could have done, still it is over now, and we want peace. [illegible] war with England or France. Perhaps he would prefer to change masters. The General hesitated, but finally said that that would depend on the course taken [illegible] He couldn't trust him.

HORSE THIEVES.—A trio of horse thieves from the direction of Canyon City were unearthed near Butter creek a few days since and a lively chase was made for them. So close were the pursuers upon them that the thieves, frightened, [illegible] by cutting loose their provisions and abandoning a horse which was secured. At last accounts the pursuit was still going on and with hopes of cutting them off [illegible] excellent horses and were making good time in their endeavors to escape.—Umatilla Advertiser.

[illegible] At McKeon's Hall [illegible] Springfield.

TO NEUTRALIZE OFFENSIVENESS.—In many forms we use disinfecting agents. Impure breath caused by bad teeth [illegible] is neutralized by Sozodont. This is a healthful beautifier and a great luxury as a dentrifice. The repulsive breath is by its use rendered fragrant [illegible] lovers will be no longer noticed.

WITH THE MOST ASTONISHING SUCCESS IN CURING
Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Croup, Liver Complaint, Bronchitis, Difficulty of Breathing, Asthma, and every affection of the

INCLUDING EVEN CONSUMPTION.

There is scarcely one individual in the community who wholly escapes, during a season, from some one, however slightly developed, of the above symptoms—a neglect of which might lead to the last named, and most to be dreaded disease in the whole catalogue. The power of "medicinal gum" of the Wild Cherry Tree over this class of complaints is well known, so great is the good it has performed, and so great the popularity it has acquired.

In this preparation, besides the virtues of the Cherry, there are commingled with it other ingredients of like value, thus increasing its value ten fold, and forming a Remedy whose power to soothe, to heal, to relieve, and to cure disease, exists in no other medicine yet discovered.

The unequalled success that has attended the application of this medicine in all cases of has induced many physicians of high standing to employ it in their practice, some of whom advise us of the fact under their own signatures. We have space only for the names of a few of those —

The Assassination Trials

[illegible]

W[illegible], June 28 [illegible]

The Court met at [illegible] this afternoon, when special Judge Advocate Bingham proceeded to sum up the evidence [illegible] the views of the law [illegible] in the present trial.

The question [illegible] [illegible] the sixteen [illegible]

[illegible]

If the [illegible] established [illegible] either [illegible] the [illegible] all the [illegible] the conspiracy, and the whether the other parties at the time such [illegible] were [illegible] acts done by their confederates were present or absent here within the intrenched lines of the Capital, or crouching behind the intrenched lines of Richmond, or awaiting the results of their murderous plot against their country, its Constitution and laws, across the border under the shelter of the British flag. The declared and accepted rule of law in cases of conspiracy is that in prosecution for conspiracy it is an established rule that where several persons are proved to have combined together for the same illegal purpose, any act done by one of the party in pursuance of the original concerted plan and in reference to the common object, is, in the contemplation of law, as well as in sound reason, the act of the whole party, and therefore the proof of the act will be evidence against any of the others who were engaged in the same general conspiracy, without regard to the question whether the prisoners proved to have been concerned in the past or transaction (Phillips on Evidence, 210). The same rule obtains in case of treason. If several persons agree to levy war, some in one place and some in another, and one party be actually appear in arms, this is a levying of war by all, as well as those who were not in arms as those who were, if it were done in pursuance of the original concert, for those who made the attempt were emboldened by the confidence inspired by the general concert, and therefore these particular acts are in justice indisputable to all the rest. (1st East Pleas of the Crown 97 [illegible])

HOW THE CONSPIRATORS ARE LINKED TOGETHER

After quoting other authorities in this connection Judge Bingham asked what is the evidence direct and circumstantial that the accused, or either of them, together with John H. Surratt, John Wilkes Booth, Jefferson Davis, George N. Sanders, Beverly Tucker, Jacob Thompson, William C. Cleary, C. C. Clay, George Harper and George Young did combine, federate and conspire in aid of the existing rebellion, as charged, to kill and murder within the military department of Washington and within the fortified and intrenched lines thereof, Abraham Lincoln, late, and at the time of the said combining, confederating and conspiring, President of the United States of America, and Commander in Chief of the army and navy thereof, Andrew Johnson, Vice President of the United States, William H. Seward, Secretary of State of the United States, and Ulysses S. Grant, Lieutenant General of the armies thereof and then in command under the direction of the President. That Davis, as the leader of the rebellion, gave to his agents, then in Canada, commissions in blank bearing the official signature of his War Minister, J. A. Seddon, to be by them filled up and delivered to such agents as they might employ to act in the interest of the rebellion within the United States, and intended to be a cover and protection for any crimes they might therein commit in the service of the rebellion are also facts established here and which no man can gainsay. Who doubts that Kennedy, whose confession made in view of immediate death, as proved here, was commissioned by these accredited agents of Davis to burn the city of New York, that he was to have attempted it on the night of the Presidential election, and that he did, in combination with his confederates, set fire to four hotels in the city of New York on the night of the 25th of November last? Who doubts that in like manner, in the interest of the rebellion and by the authority of Davis' accredited agents, also commissioned Bennett H. Young to commit arson, robbery and murder of unarmed citizens in St. Albans, Vermont? Who doubts, upon the testimony shown, that Davis, by his agents deliberately adopted the system of starvation of our captive soldiers in his hands, or that as shown by the testimony, he sanctioned the burning of hospitals and steamboats, the property of private persons, and paid therefor from his stolen treasure the sum of $35,000 in gold.

THE YELLOW FEVER PLOT

By the evidence of Joseph Godfrey Hyams it is proved that Thompson, the agent of Jefferson Davis, paid him money for the service he rendered in the infamous and fiendish project of importing pestilence into our camps and cities, to destroy the lives of citizens and soldiers, and into the house of the President for the purpose of destroying his life. It may be said, and, doubtless will be said, by the pensioned advocates of this rebellion, that Hyams, being infamous, is not to be believed. It is admitted that he is infamous, as it must be conceded that any man is infamous who either participated in such a crime or who attempts in anywise to extenuate, but it will be observed that Hyams is supported by the testimony of Sandford Conover, who heard Blackburn and the other rebel agents in Canada speak of this infernal project, and by the testimony of Wall, the well known auctioneer of this city, whose character is unquestioned, that he received the importation of pestilence, of course without any knowledge of the purpose, and that Hyams consigned the goods to him in the name of J. W. Harris, a fact in itself an acknowledgment of guilt, and that he received afterward a letter from Harris, dated Toronto (C. W.), December 1st, 1864, wherein Harris stated that he had not been able to come to the States since his return to Canada, and asked for an account of the sale. It was, Bingham said, a matter of notoriety that a part of Hyams' statement is verified by the results at Newbern (N. C.), to which point, he says, a portion of the infected clothing was shipped through a sutler, the result of which was that nearly 1,000 citizens and soldiers died there about that time with the yellow fever.

COMPLICITY OF DAVIS

Bingham then proceeded to show that there was positive proof on the record to show that the rebel chief, Jeff Davis, sanctioned these crimes committed, and attempted, through the instrumentality of his accredited agents in Canada, Thomas, Clay, Tucker, Sanders, Cleary, etc., upon the houses and property of the people of the North, and that Davis, the procurer of arson and of the indiscriminate murder of the innocent and unoffending necessarily resultant therefrom, was capable also of endeavoring to procure the murder, by direct assassination, of the President of the United States and others charged with the duty of maintaining the Government of the United States and of suppressing the rebellion, in which this arch traitor and conspirator was engaged. The official papers of Davis, captured under the guns of our victorious army in the rebel Capital, identified beyond question and shadow of doubt and placed upon your record, together with the declarations and acts of his conspirators and agents, proclaim to all the world that he was capable of attempting to accomplish his treasonable procuration of the murder of the late President and other chief officers of the United States by the hands of hired assassins.

THE ASSASSINATION PLANNED IN CANADA

Bingham said the Court must be satisfied that the several parties named in the record did combine and conspire together in Canada to kill and murder Abraham Lincoln, Andrew Johnson, Wm. H. Seward and Ulysses S. Grant, and that this agreement was substantially entered into by Booth and the agents of Davis in Canada as early as October [illegible] What ever may be the conviction of others, my own conviction is that Jefferson Davis is as clearly proven guilty of this conspiracy as is John Wilkes Booth, by whose hand Jefferson Davis inflicted the mortal wound upon Abraham Lincoln. His words of intense hate and rage and disappointment [illegible] that the assassins had not done their work well, that they had not succeeded in [illegible] the people altogether of their constitutional Executive and advisers, and hence Davis exclaims: "If they had killed Andy Johnson the beast and Secretary Stanton the job would be complete." The job, says this procurer of assassination, was not well done. It appears by the testimony that the proposition made to Davis was to kill and murder the deadliest enemies of the Confederacy, not to kidnap them [illegible] that by the [illegible] Tucker, Thompson, Clay, Cleary, Harper and Young, the conspirators in Canada, the agreement and combination among them was to kill and murder Abraham Lincoln, William H. Seward, Andrew Johnson, Ulysses S. Grant, Edwin M. Stanton, and others of his advisers, and not kidnap them. It appears from every utterance of John Wilkes Booth, as well as from the Charles Selby letter, that as early as November the proposition with him was to kill and murder [illegible]

[illegible]

The learned gentleman entered into an elaborate review of the evidence, saying that there was cooperation between the several accused in the execution of this conspiracy, as is clearly established by the testimony that John Wilkes Booth was killed [illegible] The evidence shows that all the accused save Mudd and Arnold were in Washington on the 14th of April the day of the assassination, together with John Wilkes Booth and John H. Surratt; that on that day Booth had a secret interview with the prisoner Mary E. Surratt; that immediately thereafter she went to Surrattsville to perform her part of the preparation necessary to the successful execution of the conspiracy, and did make the preparation that John H. Surratt had directed here to make, leaving the parts that the prisoner had produced [illegible] by the dispatch of April 13th [illegible] Thompson [illegible] Montreal, Canada, that he was also present to keep watch or strike a blow, and ready for the contemplated flight; that Atzerodt, in the afternoon of that day, was seeking to obtain a horse, the better to secure his own safety by flight after he should have performed the task which he had voluntarily undertaken, by contract in the conspiracy, the murder of Andrew Johnson, then Vice President of the United States; that he did procure a horse for that purpose at Naylor's, and was seen at nine o'clock in the evening to ride to the Kirkwood House, where the Vice President then was domiciled and [illegible] At a previous [illegible] he was at the Kirkwood House and left the card now in evidence, doubtless to ascertain the room of the Vice President, and which was in these words: "Don't wish to disturb you; are you at home? J. Wilkes Booth." After it when he made application at Brown's in the afternoon for the horse, said to Weichmann, who was there, he was going to leave the country and he was going to get a horse and send for Payne. He did get a horse for Payne, as well as for himself, for it is proven that on the 12th he was seen in Washington riding the horse procured by Booth, in [illegible] with Mudd last November, from Gardner. A similar horse was tied before the door of Seward on the night of the murder and was captured after the flight of Payne, who was [illegible] and which horse is now identified as the Gardner horse. Booth also procured a horse on the same day, took it to his stable in the rear of the theatre, where he had an interview with Spangler, and where he concealed it. Herold [illegible] obtained a horse in the afternoon, and was seen between 9 and 10 o'clock riding with Atzerodt down the Avenue from the Treasury, then up Fourteenth and down F street passing close to Ford's Theatre. O'Laughlin had come to Washington the day before; he had sought out his victim General Grant at the house of the Secretary of War, that he might be able with certainty to identify him, and at the very hour when these preparations were going on, was lying in wait at Rullman's on the Avenue, keeping watch, and declaring as he did at 10 o'clock, when told that the fatal blow had been struck by Booth, "I don't believe Booth did it." During the day and night before he had been visiting Booth, and doubtless encouraging him, and at that very hour was in position at a convenient distance to aid and protect him in his flight as well as to execute his own part of the conspiracy by inflicting death upon General Grant, who, happily, was not at the theater, or in the city, having left the city that day. Who doubts that Booth, having ascertained, in the course of the day, that General Grant would not be present at the theatre, O'Laughlin, who was to murder General Grant, instead of entering the box with Booth was detailed to lie in wait and watch and strike for him? Judge Bingham minutely detailed the circumstances in connection with all the accused to show that they were clearly co-conspirators, and concluded his elaborate summing up as follows:

CONCLUSION

If this treasonable conspiracy has not been wholly executed; if the several executive officers of the United States and the Commander of its armies, to kill and murder whom the said several accused thus confederated and conspired, have not each and all fallen by the hands of these conspirators, thereby leaving the people of the United States without a President and Vice President, without a Secretary of State, who alone is clothed with authority by the law to call an election to fill a vacancy, should any arise, in the offices of President and Vice President, and without a lawful commander of the armies of the Republic, it is only because the conspirators were deterred by the vigilance and fidelity of the executive officers whose lives were mercifully protected on that night of murder by the care of the Infinite Being who has thus far saved the Republic and crowned its armies with victory. If this conspiracy was entered into by the accused; if John Wilkes Booth did kill and murder Abraham Lincoln in pursuance thereof; if Lewis Payne did, in pursuance of said conspiracy, assault with intent to kill and murder William H. Seward as stated, and if the several parties accused did commit the several acts alleged against them in the prosecution of said conspiracy, then it is the law that all the parties to that conspiracy, whether present at the time of its execution or not, whether on trial before this Court or not, are alike guilty of the several acts done by each in the execution of the common design. What these conspirators did in the execution of this conspiracy by the hand of one of their conspirators they did themselves. His act done in the prosecution of the common design, was the act of all the parties to the treasonable combination, because done in execution and furtherance of their guilt and treasonable agreement. As we have seen this is the rule, whether all the conspirators [illegible] whether they are on trial or not. It is not material what the nature of the indictment is, provided the offense involve a conspiracy. Upon indictment for instance it appears that others together with the prisoner conspired to perpetrate the crime, the act of one done in pursuance of that intention, should be evidence against the rest. (1st Wharton 706.) To the same effect are the words of Chief Justice Marshall before cited, that whoever leagues in a general conspiracy, performed any part however minute, or however remote from the scene of action, are guilty as principals. In this treasonable conspiracy to aid the existing armed rebellion by murdering the executive officers of the United States and the commander of its armies, all the parties to it must be held as principals, and the act of one in the prosecution of the common design is the act of all. I leave the decision of this dread issue with the Court to which alone it belongs. It is for you to say, upon your oaths, whether the accused are guilty. I am not conscious that in this argument I have made any erroneous statement of the evidence or drawn any erroneous conclusions. Yet I pray the Court, out of tender regard and jealous care for the rights of the accused, to see that no error of mine, if any there be, shall work them harm. The past services of the members of this honorable Court give assurance that without fear, favor or affection they will discharge with fidelity the duty enjoined upon them by their oaths. Whatever else may befall, I trust in God that in this as in every other American court the rights of the whole people will be respected, and the republic in this its supreme hour of trial will be true to itself and just to all, ready to protect the rights of the humblest, to redress every wrong, to avenge every crime, to vindicate the majesty of law and to maintain inviolate that justice to establish which the Constitution was ordained, whether assailed by hosts armed with gold or armed with steel.

GEN. SHERIDAN'S MODESTY. – A writer in one of the magazines relates the following incident in the career of that officer when he was Quartermaster in the Southwest at the beginning of the war:

Sheridan's modesty amounted to bashfulness, especially in the presence of the gentler sex. His life having been passed on the frontier, at a [illegible] or at some solitary post, it is not at all surprising that our Quartermaster should hesitate when urged to go where ladies might be expected. If by chance he found himself in such a gathering he was sure to shrink into an obscure corner and keep silent. We remember an amusing incident of his bashfulness. He for one time attracted toward a young lady in Springfield, which he was engaged in forwarding supplies to the army. [illegible] showing her some attention. It was [illegible] modest to venture on such a step [illegible] expedient. If [illegible] young clerk [illegible] in his office, whom he induced to take the young lady out riding, while he [illegible] the carriage and horses. The [illegible] could be seen [illegible] with pleasure in the arrangement. Courting by proxy seemed to please him as much as if he had been doing it himself. What the result was we never learned. We think it most probable [illegible]

PACIFIC RAILROAD BONDS IN THE EAST. – The New York [illegible] says:

The first bonds issued by the Government to the Pacific Railroad have made their appearance in the market, and thus far amount to $[illegible] These bonds were authorized by Congress in July 1862 and 1864 and bear interest at six per cent in lawful money. These are issued as each section is completed, and not more than $[illegible] will be out this year, including the issue to all the roads. The bonds have thirty years to run, and are offered at par.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.

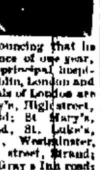
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!

Dr Gibbon's Dispensary,



617 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned to this State, after an absence of one year, during which time he has visited all the principal hospitals of Europe, among them those of Dublin, London and Paris. The following celebrated hospitals of London are among those visited by the Doctor: Guy's, High street, Borough; St. Bartholomew's, Smithfield; St. Mary's, Camb Place, Pad.; Lock, Harrow road; St. Luke's, Old street; University, Gower street; Westminster, Broad Sanctuary; Charring Cross, Agar street, Strand; London, Whitechapel road; Royal Free, Gray's Inn road; King's College, Portugal street.

DOCTOR GIBBON has also visited Doctors Acton of London, Parker of Birmingham, England, and Ricord of Paris; who are considered the best physicians and surgeons in the world, and whose authority is acknowledged to be the highest in the treatment of Sexual Diseases.

DOCTOR GIBBON has obtained from them their new mode of treatment which cannot be surpassed.

DOCTOR GIBBON has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with new facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system. Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible life-destroying maladies—see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to Doctor Gibbon, a physician who has made private disease his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practised by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing, with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and pustules upon the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania, and frequently insanity. It is not to be [illegible] should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME by addressing a letter to Doctor Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions for use, by Express, or [illegible] through Wells, Fargo & Co.
